NOVEMBER WEATHER AND WINCO GENERATORS

While the classic "storm season" often conjures hurricanes in late-summer and winter blizzards, November brings its own set of threats. Late-fall transitional weather means large contrast zones (e.g., warm Gulf air meeting cold northern air) strong frontal systems, high winds, heavy precipitation. Trees still may have leaves, making them more prone to wind damage, causing more downed lines. Power infrastructure may already be battered from earlier seasons (aging poles, deferred maintenance) and thus more vulnerable when stressed again. Shorter daylight, cooling demands rising, means when power goes out the consequences (cold homes, food spoilage) escalate faster.

The month can feature severe weather, including a possibility for strong storms or even tornadoes, particularly in the southern U.S. The Midwest can see strong storms known as "witch storms" during this month. The Atlantic hurricane season officially ends in November, so the risk is much lower than earlier in the fall but with changing weather patterns, there have been stronger storms in recent years.

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING UNDERGROUND?

We found it!

We've found underground PVC plastic pipe, electrical cable, conduits, steel pipe, ceramic pipe, and asbestos pipe. We've found it all with the MAGNETOMATIC®. This pipe locator has one moving assembly - contains no dials, intricate mechanisms or batteries. In essence, the MAGNETOMATIC® is a "space age" divining rod. It simply reacts to pipe and cables underground when it passes over them. MAGNETOMATIC® is effective to a depth of 10 feet or more. It collapses into a neat package that fits into your hip pocket. Sold on a money-back, satisfaction guaranteed basis. Used by contractors, public utilities, plumbers, and others. Simple, easy-to-read instructions. Reasonably priced.

As one major safety agency notes: when winter or late-fall storms cause outages, risks like carbon-monoxide poisoning, fires, hypothermia etc. spike.

High winds, ice accumulation, tree-fall on lines can knock out power for extended periods. As temperatures drop, heating systems start working harder; if power is out, homes/businesses can become uninhabitable or lead to frozen pipes, spoilage etc. Because utilities may have many simultaneous failures, restoration may take days. Without backup power, that's a major risk.

Winco generators have been on the market for over 90 years and the company continues to excel in power generation field. Having being in the field for a long time, Winco has perfected their generators and all of their products are top-notch.

They are a small company with deep roots in a little town in Minnesota. They pride ourselves in our building and our manufacturing capabilities and do much more than assembly here.

Seventy-four families rely on WINCO for a reliable place to work. They haven't laid off an Employee since 1991, how is that for reliable!

Because WINCO emphasizes "clean power", industrial strength build, and storm-related outage awareness, this brand is a strong fit for backup power applications under storm conditions. The standby models (like the 11 kW or 20 kW) are especially appropriate for storm-outage preparedness in a home/business context. A portable might work, but during storms you may prefer automatic switching, less manual setup, fewer exposure risks.
